A Boston paper remarks that the effects of culture are always prominent in language. This is noticeable when a Boston woman jams her finger. She says, "Aow." Coarse, illbred people say, "Ouch." It is triffes that reveal the innate delicacy of a human soul .- Norwich Bulletin.

A writer in an agricultural paper claims that there is death in the dishcloth. Perhaps they dont know how to cook 'em at his house. We never ate a dishcloth, but we should think that if they were soaked twenty-four hours before boiling, and carefully scraped and drawn with butter before placing on the table, they would be every bit as healthy and palatable as tripe .-Norristown Herald.

Two sons of Erin, shoveling sand on a hot day, stopped to rest, and exchanged views on the labor question: " Pat this is mighty hard work we're at." "It is, indade, Jimmy; but what kind of work is it you'd like if ye could get it?" " Well says the other," leaning reflectively upon his shovel and wiping the perspiration with the back of his hand. " For a nice, aisy, clane business, I think I would like to be a bishop."

THE FATAL THIRTEEN .- There are silly stories in the papers about the superstitious notions of the late A. T. Stewart, and his belief in signs and omens, lucky days, places, persons, events, etc. But it is a curious thing, as well as a true one, related of the so-called superstitions, or whatever they may be called, which seem to linger in the mind, that at the very last of the usual Superior Furnishing Goods.
